Let's Get Social: Using Social Media in Law Enforcement

Dionne Waugh

Jefferson County Sheriff's Office (CO)

There's no doubt that social media is a powerful force in law enforcement. When used successfully, it brings lots of positive attention to an agency, boosts employee morale and builds good relationships with the community. But when it goes wrong, the results are disastrous, public and can permanently affect the agency.

Social Media & Law Enforcement

Captain William T. Browne

Indiana Conservation Officers

Social Media can be used as a real time interaction between police agencies and members of the public. With a plan that allows for creativity and guidelines backed by agency policy, 21st Century Community Policing can be enhanced by the use of social media. Learn how the Indiana DNR has used Social Media to increase the agency's ability to build community relationships and control its message.
